DR. JAMES E. SHEPARD
November 3, 1875-October 6, 1917
Founder and first President of North Carolina College

OUR NORTH CAROLINA COLLEGE

Fifty years ago it was but an idea. Then the late Dr. James E. Shepard recognized the need for trained Negro ministers to act as leaders for the race, and he set about raising money to establish a training school. As a result of Dr. Shepard's efforts, 10 buildings on a 25-acre tract, known as the National Religious Training School and Chautauqua, were erected in 1910.

The passage of years found the school changing its original aims and means of financial support. Sold and reorganized in 1915, the name of the institution was changed to the National Training School.

Financial difficulties plagued the institution, causing it to become state supported and thereby effecting the need for another name change. Accordingly, in 1923, the National Training School became the Durham State Normal School.

Further building additions and changes in its aims caused a need for still another name change for the institution. This time the school became the North Carolina College for Negroes.

Today, named the North Carolina College at Durham, the institution occupies some 62-acres and has thirty-six buildings of modern brick construction. It offers 31 undergraduate courses in subjects that range from art to zoology. It also offers a graduate school of arts and sciences, a school of public health education, a school of hygiene and public health, a school of law, and a school of library science. The school has graduated students who have contributed significantly in every field of endeavor.

We then, the proud staff of the Golden Anniversary EAGLE, offer this yearbook as a tribute to the institution's fifty years of progress, a memoir book of the 1960-61 school year, and a suggestion book of the future development of our beloved alma mater — North Carolina College at Durham.

Pan Hellenic Council

Because sororities and fraternities touch upon every phase of a college student's life — scholarship, health, social activities, social standards, cooperation with college ideals, and service to college and community — they play a vital role on the North Carolina College Campus. The College's Pan-Hellenic Council as the official spokesman of sororities and fraternities, exists to encourage not only a spirit of cooperation and friendly competition among its members, but also wholehearted cooperation with and support of campus and community ideals.

The girl in the Canteen bolts her food, frantically checking her watch . . . the student in class has been tense and pre-occupied for weeks . . . the boy lopes across campus . . . what's the matter with these people?

Chances are they are all members of one or another of N.C.C.'s many organizations, and their symptoms are typical of all such members — rushing to a meeting, worried about a production, racing to meet a deadline — throughout the school year. Whether professional, musical, religious, dramatic or journalistic, there is an organization to fit the personality, goals, ambitions, and interest of every N.C.C. student. No one has to be reminded of the value of such groups. Each was organized to — and does — fulfill a definite need and serve a decided purpose. Its members, working together in close co-operation in order to secure a common goal, gain in the satisfaction of knowing a worthwhile job well-done, while they establish warm relationships and lifelong friendships in the bargain. Each group contributes its share in enriching not only its specific members, but the whole College Community as well. Through their publications, presentations, open discussion meetings, or concerts, they serve to illuminate and broaden the scope and awareness of other individuals.

The following pages strive to recapture the spirit of each group.
